Our project

In the context of the transformation of modern society, accelerated by technological and social changes, today's citizens need to acquire new skills to manage the new reality, such as digital skills, critical thinking and media literacy. EFIVOS aims to promote digital skills of socially disadvantaged groups (migrants, ethnics minorities, etc.), through partnerships between schools, businesses and the non-formal sector, including public libraries. The idea is to encourage young people to take the media into their own hands, by the creation of e-newsletter and online radio.

Activities

Development of a structured methodology related with the organization of digital media training and the development of digital media run by young migrants in cooperation with local youth.

Training of trainers and educators by visits of the national heads of the teams in Greece to familiarise with the practice.

Organisation of training for up to 200 young migrants and local youth in:

- Digital Media Labs
- Journalism workshops
- Study visits in media schools
- Practical training, simulations etc.
- Certification of training by experts, professionals.

Support the creation of digital media managed by young migrants in cooperation with local youth, follow-up after training, mentoring, coaching.
